PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON FOUR-POWER PACT

Good Augury for World Economic Conference

BRITAIN TO SEND WAR DEBT NOTE

NO FINAL DECISION REACHED

London, June 9.
The Cabinet met this afternoon and, it is understood, failed to finally dispose of the war debts question.

It is expected that a Note embodying the Government's views on the subject of the June instalment will be sent to America during the week-end.—Reuter.

MATTERN AT BELOYE

STILL HOPEFUL OF RECORD

A DAY BEHIND

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 10, 8.40 a.m.)

Moscow, June 10.
James Matern, the famous American long-distance flier, still intends to make an effort to beat the round-the-world record set up by Post and Gatty, although the delay caused by his mishap near Novosibirsk has thrown him a day behind their schedule.

He landed to-day at Beloye, some forty-four miles to the west of Irkutsk at 1.45 p.m. B.S.T. and leaves to-morrow at dawn for Habarovsk, on the Soviet-Manchurian border.

Up to his arrival at Omak, Matern was hours in front of the Post-Gatty schedule. He intended to push on to Habarovsk to-day, but owing to lack of sleep was compelled to rest.

He still hopes to get inside the record by a spectacular finish, though the odds at the moment appear against him.—Reuter.

DEATH OF MR. DAVID WOOD

THIRTY-THREE YEARS IN P.W.D.

We regret to record the death in London recently of Mr. David Wood, formerly of the Public Works Department in Hongkong. He retired in 1924 after thirty-three years service.

Mr. Wood, who was born at Aberdeen in 1865, was educated at Gordon's College, Aberdeen, and later entered the Civil Service.

He came to the Colony in April, 1891, as chief accountant to the P. W. D. and remained with that department till his retirement thus completing 33 years service here.

Mr. Wood on several occasions acted as Assessor of Rates, whilst in 1906 he was Director of the Widows' and Orphans' Pension Fund.

In 1894, he was Secretary of the Commission on the Housing of Chinese, whilst from 1900 to 1903 he was Hon. Secretary and Hon. Treasurer of the Queen Victoria Diamond Jubilee Committee.

Socially, Mr. Wood lived a rather retiring life, but some years ago he was Hon. Secretary of the St. Andrew's Society and always took a keen interest in the activities of that body.

DALADIER MAKES STATEMENT

NO FURTHER QUESTION OF REARMAMENT OF GERMANY

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH").

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 10, 8.40 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, JUNE 9.
THE INITIALLING OF THE FOUR-POWER PACT HAS BEEN WELL RECEIVED IN THE UNITED STATES.

President Roosevelt declared that the agreement was a good augury for the future, adding that the pact among the Western Powers to cooperate for the preservation of peace should give renewed courage to all who are striving for the success of the Geneva Disarmament and the London Economic Conferences.—Reuter.

FRENCH POLICY IN LONDON

Currency Stabilisation: 40-Hour Week

Paris, June 9.
France's determination to every-thing possible to make the World Economic Conference a success was expressed by the Premier, M. Daladier, addressing the Assembly to-night.

M. Daladier said that France, in her policy regarding the conference, did not consider that the manipulation of gold would solve the world's currency problems, and that countries off the gold standard must first agree upon stabilisation.

CONCERTED PRODUCTION.

As regards the movement to raise world commodity prices, he said France would defend the interest of French farmers by advocating a policy of concerted production between the producers of all countries.

M. Daladier dealt at some length with the problem created by the development of labour-saving devices, and said that France would adhere to a forty-hour week if all the great Powers followed suit.

France would support the policy of big programmes of public works as a remedy for unemployment.

TRIBUTE TO MUSSOLINI.

M. Daladier stoutly defended the Four-Power Pact as advantageous both to France and to the cause of peace. He paid a warm tribute to Signor Mussolini on his conduct of the negotiations, and expressed satisfaction that the Pact would end the misunderstandings which had so long separated the two great Latin nations.

He added that there was no longer any question of Germany's re-armament.—Reuter.

ANOTHER RECORD IN U.S. GOLF

JACK GOODMAN DOES A SIXTY-SIX

New York, June 9.
Jack Goodman, of Omaha, Nebraska provided the thrills of the United States open golf championship at Glenview to-day.

He returned a second round score of 66, two better than Armour's record-breaking round yesterday, and equalling the lowest score ever made in the championship.

The leaders are:—
Goodman 76. 66 141
Armour 68. 75 143
Kirkwood 74. 70 144
Gene Sarazen had scores of 74

FRENCH RETALIATION RUMOURS

Tariff Changes Tabled in Chamber

Paris, June 9.
As a prelude to the tariff discussions at the world economic conference, the Government has tabled Bills in the Chamber, authorising:

(1) Customs surtaxes as a reprisal to measures by foreign governments injurious to French trade.

(2) New tariffs for goods which have hitherto been subject to a quota system. The quota will be removed or modified.

RETALIATION?

It was suggested to-night that France intends to retaliate against the German transfer moratorium, affecting the Dawes and Young reparations loans, by raising her tariff walls.

Following interpellations on France's foreign policy, a resolution involving a question of confidence was put by M. Herriot.

GOOD MAJORITY.

An amendment to the effect that the Government should not sign a Pact in which the Little Entente and Belgium and Poland were not participants was rejected by 347 votes to 245, which figures are taken to indicate the support which M. Daladier is likely to receive when he asks for support for his general policy.—Reuter.

PREPARATIONS WELL AHEAD

London, June 10.
Preparations are well advanced for the opening of the World Economic Conference at the Royal Geographical Museum in South Kensington, although the premises are not yet out of the builders' hands.

The representatives of nearly seventy nations from all the ends of the earth are now assembling in London.

His Majesty will open the conference on Monday with a seven-minute speech, which will be broadcast throughout the world.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's presidential address will follow immediately.—Reuter.

and 77, making 151, while Walter Hagen had 73 and 76. The qualifying score was 150. George Von Elm, with 80 and 78, and the Ryder Cup player, Dudley, with 81 and 81 failed to qualify.—Reuter.

M. Daladier, who is destined to play an important part at the World Economic Conference, as the chief delegate of the one big Power remaining on the gold standard, is shown above at the Jean d'Arc celebrations in Paris.

POLICING OF LUAN HO AREA

(Special to "Telegraph").

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 10, 8 a.m.)

Tokyo, June 10.
An important meeting of the Cabinet was held last night when developments in China and the tariff dispute with Great Britain were discussed.

It is understood that the North China situation was explained to the Cabinet by General Araki, the War Minister, who said that negotiations for detailed regulations of the Sino-Japanese armistice agreement are progressing very smoothly.

He added that the maintenance of peace and order in the demilitarised zone will be undertaken by a special Chinese constabulary force consisting of five thousand regular Chinese troops and five thousand security police.

Details of the discussion regarding the British tariff action against Japan and the suggested reprisals have not been disclosed.—Reuter.

JAPAN AND CANTON.

Tokyo, June 10.
The Foreign Minister reported at last night's Cabinet meeting that there had developed a favourable turn in Japan's trade with China, which he ascribed to the subsidence of anti-Japanese agitation in various parts of China, especially in Canton.—Reuter.

Betting: 15/2 Robber Chief, 11/8 Creme Brulee, 10/1 Isthmus.—Reuter.

NOT GOING TO JAPAN

"MILITARY GANGSTER" REGIME

THAT U.S. LOAN

Canton, June 9.

Every person having a whit of common sense will oppose the U.S.$50,000,000 wheat and cotton loan from the United States, declared a high Canton official in an interview with the Central Press to-day.

He said it would be difficult for China to raise even C.$20,000,000 or $100,000,000 Chinese currency to repay the loan in this time of trade depression and exhaustion of the Chinese people.

The story of Mr. Eugene Chen's visit to Japan, reported in the press, is absolutely unfounded, he later asserted.

Mr. Chen is a member of the Southwest Political Council and has no spare time to visit Japan at the present moment.

"I wish to emphasize that Mr. Eugene Chen is urgently needed in the Southwest in connexion with the plans vis-a-vis the Communists and the Japanese invaders. That he has gone to Japan is the mid-summer night dream of some imaginative journalist.—Central Press.

"MILITARY GANGSTERS."

Hongkong, June 10.
Interviewed by Reuter to-day Mr. Eugene Chen, who is on a visit to Hongkong with Madame Chen, categorically denied the report that he was being sent on a secret mission to Japan.

"Japan is to-day," he stated, "in the hands of military gangsters, who are destroying their country morally in the eyes of the world. And because this is an epoch of revolutionary changes, the inevitable day of punishment may come sooner than is thought by a people who hold to the ancient faith in brute force."

"There is no need," he added, "for any Chinese mission of any sort to go to Japan as long as Japanese toes are dug in even an inch of Chinese soil."—Reuter.

JAPANESE PLANES OVER TIENTSIN

AN OBSERVATION EXPEDITION

Tientsin, June 1.
Several Japanese planes flew over Tientsin and the surrounding districts yesterday afternoon. It is assumed that they were carrying out observations to ascertain whether the Chinese are observing the armistice understanding.

E. J. DILLON DEAD

NOTED LINGUIST AND AUTHOR

FAMOUS COUPS IN JOURNALISM

Barcelona, June 9.
Emile Joseph Dillon, the noted linguist, author and international journalist, who had been residing in Spain for some time owing to failing health, died to-day in Barcelona.

A famous publicist, he was born in Dublin in 1864 of an Irish father and an English mother. It was intended to make him a Catholic priest, but, objecting to this, he went to Paris when a youth and attended the College de France.

Renan's lectures there aroused in him an enthusiasm for Oriental languages and literature and he studied Sanskrit, Arabic and Hebrew at Innsbruck and Persian at Leipzig and Tubingen. After a visit to Russia to learn other tongues he went to Louvain and took the degree of Doctor of Oriental languages and literature.

ARMENIAN ATROCITIES.

Returning to Russia he secured similar degrees at Petrograd and Kharkoff where he became a professor. He also contributed to newspapers and periodicals. Appointed in 1887 correspondent in Russia of the London Daily Telegraph, he was associated with it for over 40 years. In 1894 when Turkey was accused of trying to exterminate the Armenians, Dillon went to find out the truth.

Writing for his paper a series of articles describing the horrors he witnessed, he stirred up the entire Christian world to intervention. After acting as war correspondent during the Spanish-American conflict, Dillon came to China in 1900 with the international force organised to crush the Boxer Rebellion.

In 1906, during the Dreyfus trial at Rennes he telegraphed vivid reports of the proceedings often running to 5 or 6 columns—a remarkable feat. Afterwards for several years he wrote brilliant articles on international questions as they arose.

TRUTH ABOUT SPAIN.

Dillon was on intimate terms with some of the greatest statesmen of his time. He was with Venizelos in Crete when he was proscribed by the Turks and was in the confidence of Count Witte and Count Aehrenthal.

Illness compelled him to cease work for some years during which he lived in Spain. In May, 1932, however, his name reappeared in the press as the author of a series of articles on "The Truth about Spain." He wrote a number of works of linguistic and theological interest, stories in Russian, translations from various languages and a biography of Maxim Gorky, "Why Italy Went to War," "Ourselves and Germany," "The Eclipse of Russia," "Mexico on the Verge," "President Obregon, a World Reformer," "Russia Today and Yesterday" and in April, 1932, "Leaves from Life."

Notice is given that after 4 p.m. on Friday, 30th June, the dropping of the Timeball on Signal Hill, Kowloon, will be discontinued.

GT. BRITAIN IN SEMI-FINAL

EASY DAVIS CUP VICTORY

JAPAN TWO UP ON GERMANY

London, June 9.
Great Britain has reached the semi-final of the European Zone in the Davis Cup and will meet Czechoslovakia.

Japan is well on the way to qualifying for the last four in the same zone, leading Germany on the first day's play by two rubbers to love, and it is odds on them meeting Australia on the right of playing in the final.

It did not take Perry and Hughes very long to dispose of Rado and Caroll the Italian doubles team and so to clinch Britain's third round tie with Italy.

The Englishmen won in three sets, and were only seriously extended in the third, when they were taken to sixteen games. The first was won at 6-1, and the second at 6-4.

EASY FOR SATOH

Jiro Satoh drew first blood for Japan against Germany in Berlin to-day, when he eliminated Von Cramm in four sets.

Taffeta for Quaint Charm

Hollywood Taffeta suits and dresses and taffeta little jackets for summer party frocks bring quaint charm to warm weather styles.

Sheila Terry wears a black double-breasted taffeta suit, with white pique shawl collar, vestee and stock and she wears white gloves and hat and carries a white purse with it. Her pumps are black moire.

Nancy Carroll, wore an unusual dress of blue taffeta. The top of the dress was powder blue and the bottom navy. Bands of the navy gave the appearance of suspenders.

Kathleen Burke, wore a black taffeta tailored, single-breasted suit. The jacket was form fitting and the skirt plain and flaring. Her blouse was white satin and she topped it with a red straw fez.

Sari Maritz, wore a green and black mixed wool suit with a green taffeta blouse with big sleeves and a big bow scarf.

Ann Harding wears a powder blue taffeta blouse, with a bateau neckline and tucked shoulder seams that flare into puffs at the top of the sleeves. Her suit is the same shade of blue, made of a sheer basket weave wool, with puffed skirt.

FOR THE INVALID

Make Some Delicious Fish Quenelles

Few fish or meat dishes are more delicious and more economical than quenelles, yet they are not very frequently included in a menu. By cooking left-over by this method they may be made to go a long—and very delightful—way! The following recipe results in a light and appetising invalid dish:—

Fish Quenelles

In a stewpan placed over gentle heat mix together 1 oz. butter, 1 tablespoonful milk, and 1 tablespoonful breadcrumbs, then leave to cool.

Pound 3 oz. white fish till smooth, add an egg and bread mixture, and pass all through a wire sieve (after mixing thoroughly) and form into quenelles. To do this use two dessertspoons. Dip one spoon into boiling water, fill it with the mixture, press it from the sides to a ridge in the centre forming a nice oval shape with a knife dipped in hot water.

Now dip the other spoon in boiling water, scoop the mixture carefully into it from the other spoon, poach for ten minutes in boiling stock or milk, and drain well. Arrange some mashed potato on an oval mound on a hot dish, arrange the quenelles along the top, cover all with white sauce, and decorate with finely-chopped parsley or grated yolk of egg.

Beef Quenelles

Melt 1 oz. butter in a saucepan, and 2 oz. flour and a tencupful stock, and cook till the mixture leaves the sides of the pan and forms a mass round the spoon. Leave to cool. Meanwhile pass 1 lb. beefsteak two or three times through the mincing machine.

Beat together the flour and meat mixtures till smooth, add two eggs, one at a time, season to taste, and pound well together. Rub all through a wire sieve, form into quenelles as directed above, and place in a buttered frying pan.

When all are in the pan pour over boiling water to almost cover, place a sheet of greased paper over, and cook gently for about 30 minutes. Drain well, arrange in a circle, and cover with good white sauce.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Meat Cakes

Chop finely or mince the remains of any cold meat, and season with salt and pepper; mix with mashed potato, and stir in a beaten egg.

Flour the hands, form the mixture into round cakes, and fry in deep, very hot fat. Drain from fat and serve at once uncovered. A Macaroni Sweet

Break some macaroni in small pieces, and boil in a pint of milk (about 2 ounces of macaroni will be sufficient.)

When the macaroni is quite cooked, but not boiled to a pulp—which will spoil it—drain it and turn it out into a rather deep dish.

Have ready a custard flavoured with cinnamon and lemon juice, and slightly sweetened. Pour this, hot, over the macaroni, and serve cold.

Unbleached Cotton

This very valuable material is again coming into its own place in the housewife's opinion. She knows its value for sheets for the children's bed, kitchen curtains, and various other purposes. To bleach it she puts it into cold water, boils it up slowly, and spreads it wet on the grass, where the sunshine and showers will whiten and soften it for use.

ver, place a sheet of greased paper over, and cook gently for about 30 minutes. Drain well, arrange in a circle, and cover with good white sauce.

Cold Quenelles of Veal

Make the quenelles as directed in the previous recipe, using veal fillets in place of the beefsteak. poach them until firm in boiling water, and lay on a sieve to cool. Heat a tencupful aspic jelly, dissolve in it five sheets of French leaf gelatine, and mix with a breakfastcupful white sauce. When beginning to set, coat the cold quenelles with this preparation, decorate with hard-boiled egg yolk, grated or finely-chopped parsley, and serve with a border of shredded lettuce.

FASHION NOTES

(From A Paris Correspondent)

Parisiennes like a one-piece dress for town wear. Dresses that are good for all day predominate, and they are of great simplicity. One sees many frocks in silk, crepe with removable collarettes in light or bright colours.

There are, perhaps, a few too many of them to please the woman of exclusive tastes, but they constitute an outstanding style none the less.

The colours are rich, and, although certain fashionable women are wearing black this spring, others have chosen the newer shades, such as dark hyacinth, coq-green, dark amethyst, wood-brown or the universal dark, dark red.

Occasionally there is an ensemble of grey or dove-grey, and this shade, being light, is just the thing for a bright spring day.

If red is the leading evening colour—which it is—brown is the leading day-time shade. The copper browns are great favourites. Old shades are here to appeal to special fuchsia, magenta, indigo-blue, and a deep raisin colour. There is a new green which is called cedar. There is a special purplish-blue called "Touareg," and a middle-red called "Asia."

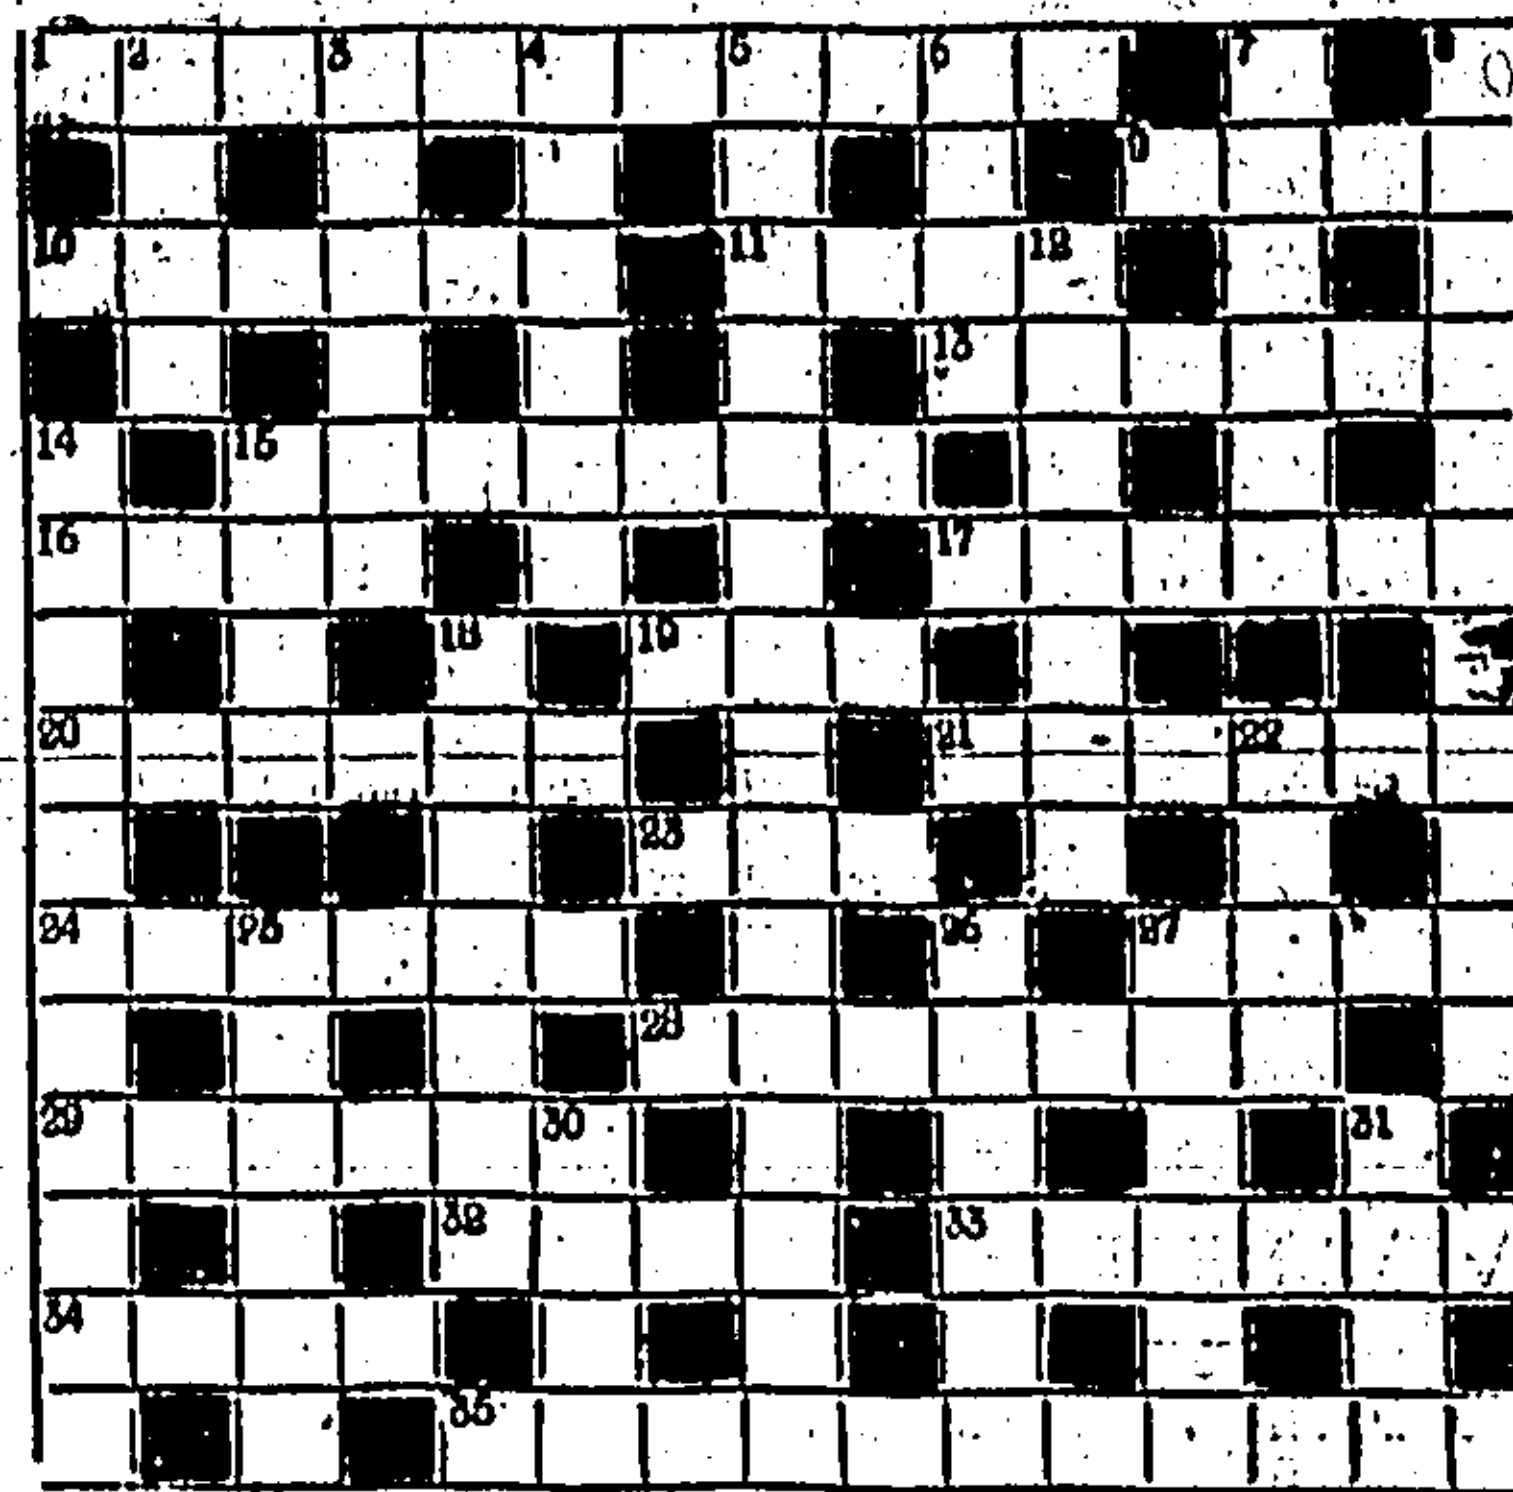

Dainty veils are in vogue at present, the greater number being crimped with round "pastilles" of velvet, suede, or felt. These, besides their decorative value, help to keep the veil in place on account of the weight of them.

DASHING!

CHIC takes a zig-zag course in Paris! A bright red left hat from Le Monnier has cut-outs through its crown through which grosgrain ribbon shows in a zig-zag design. The sweater costume follows suit and is knitted with fascinating white stripes trailing down the long, tight sleeves, from the high, plain collar. The suit fastens, Russian style, down the left side.

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONICA O'DARE, pretty, 25, and poor, is in love with DAN CARDIGAN, heir to one of Belvedere's fortunes. Monica works in a drug store, helping to support her mother, her younger sister, KAY, and her brother, MARK. An older brother, BILL, is a garage mechanic. The O'Dares have seen better days. Dan Cardigan comes back from the city and does not seek Monica out at once. She is unhappy. Dan arrives unexpectedly as Monica is washing the supper dish and they go out riding. At a dancing place they encounter CHARLES EUSTACE, mysterious and handsome newcomer. In town, with SANDRA LAWRENCE, a local belle.

CHAPTER III

Instantly Sandra took charge of the situation. Reluctantly Monica admitted to herself the older girl's charm. Sandra was prettily bossy with both of the men—with Charles Eustace whom she addressed formally and with Dan, whose first name, of course, she employed.

"Fancy finding you two here," Sandra drawled, pulling off her white gloves and settling herself in a chair opposite Monica and next to Dan. Her long-lashed gray eyes flickered an instant over Monica's simple frock. For the briefest possible moment Monica had the sensation that Sandra was really disliking her. Nonsense! Sandra had been a good friend to her all this past year, had gone to some trouble, actually, to be nice to her. "I'm imagining things," Monica decided, giving herself a mental shake.

None the less, it galled her to find that Sandra was calmly annexing Dan and that he was permitting it. The colour flamed in Monica's face. Sandra was talking to Dan in a low intimate tone, not to be heard above the orchestra's beat. Monica turned to find Charles Eustace's gaze full upon her. He asked, "Care to dance?"

She rose, and, with the barest word to the others, slipped into his arms. How tall the man was! And what enormous shoulders he had! He seemed actually to dwarf Dan who had always, heretofore, seemed Apollo-like in his proportions.

She was grateful to him. He danced easily and well and Monica's small slippered feet followed his steps smoothly. Once he spoke.

"Sorry I don't do these new stunts," She glanced up at him to find he was smiling and indicating the performance of two or three young couples dancing absorbedly in the centre of the floor. Check to check, brow to brow, they revolved to the music. Now and then they would break apart and, with arms about each other's necks, walk forward slowly wearing the rapt expressions of sleep walkers. It was a spectacle to which Monica was accustomed but, seen with the eyes of this amused newcomer, it suddenly took on a new light. She forgot her pain in Dan's defection sufficiently to smile with him.

"It is rather funny, isn't it?" He shrugged. "Seems so to me. Is it the very newest?"

Monica told him. "The high school girls all do it. My young sister, Kay—"

He interrupted her. "Ah—I was sure you girls must be sisters. I see her every day when she passes the office."

Monica said, surprised, "But I didn't know you had one." Then she flushed because she had revealed so much interest.

"I haven't," Charles Eustace told her. "My uncle's place is what I mean. Dr. Waterman's. I go down there every day to read."

They returned to the subject of

Kay. "She's extraordinarily pretty," Eustace said thoughtfully. "Or rather I should say she's beautiful. She has a sort of—sort of luminous quality about her that's dazzling."

Monica reflected that Kay would be wild with delight to hear this. Poor child, she had few enough compliments!

The music stopped and they returned to their seats. Sandra sat back smiling faintly. Dan, as he rose, wore a moody look.

Monica pretended not to notice. She felt unaccountably light-hearted. Dan Cardigan wasn't the only man in the world, after all! She was foolish to let every chance word of his, every small slight, wound her so deeply.

Sandra gave her a quizzical look. It was almost as if she interpreted Monica's heightened colour aright.

For the first time Monica felt distrust of Sandra Lawrence. She hid it, beginning to chatter gayly of nothing at all. Had Sandra planned this encounter, she wondered, under the cloak of her gaiety? Had Sandra known she was to be at the dancing place with Dan and, knowing, had she brought Charles Eustace as a decoy? No, no, the thought was too fantastic! Eustace was far too desirable a companion to be used as any woman's cat's-paw. She was, she thought, full of strange fancies tonight and at the thought she frowned.

It was always Dan who inspired this mood of envy and distrust. She could never be really natural when he was about—must always be acting a part. Sandra toyed with her sandwich and Dan gloomed. On a sudden impulse Monica said calmly, "I must be getting along, Dan. You know I said I'd be home early."

It muttered something rather ungracious and Monica rose, rather fearful inside, but determined.

"All right, Dan, if you want to stay and dance with Sandra perhaps Mr. Eustace will take me home."

It was a chance throw and it told Dan to this fact. "Sorry Monica feels she has to break up the party."

That made her ashamed but she held to her determination. "You don't need to leave now, honestly, Dan."

Charles Eustace had risen, was smiling at her oddly. "I should be delighted if Miss Lawrence approves the change in partners."

No one could have told what Sandra's emotions were. If it was triumph she felt, she veiled it well.

"Stick around, Dan," she advised idly. "Mr. Eustace will take good care of Monica—and, after all, you can see her to-morrow any time."

Her flashing glance advised the company that Monica was always available. All the other girls' souls rose in outrage at this challenge.

"Not quite that," she said coolly. "I'm frightfully busy these days. See you sometime, Dan."

Her heart was beating very fast as she left Dan and Sandra alone together. She felt a little sick and her victory tasted bitter in her mouth.

Sandra came rushing into the drug store the next day, quite as if nothing had happened. In the face of her bright cordiality Monica could do nothing. Hadn't she, after all, made the initial step the night before? Hadn't she offered to leave Dan with Charles Eustace? Oh, she was just fidgety and suspicious, that was all. Sandra was so sweet—you had to trust her!

"You minx!" Sandra exclaimed archly. Monica, wrapping up the box of expensive face powder her friend had charmingly demanded, turned to stare.

"What do you mean?" Sandra looked more arch than before, her thin, prettily rouged lips smiling mockingly. "As if you didn't know!"

"But I don't," Monica protested, in all honesty.

"Bagging that handsome devil," Sandra murmured. "You're clever, Monica darling. Cleverer than I thought."

Monica flushed. "Do you call that bagging him?"

"I do," said Sandra emphatically. Then she leaned closer so that no one else in the score might hear. Her tone was low, intimate, confiding. "He's your sort, Monica," she said softly.

"Take him off my hands. There's a lamb!"

Monica threw up her head, her eyes, flecked with that lambent golden light, studying the other girl's innocent face.

"I didn't know he was on them—exactly," she said slowly, displeased at the turn the conversation had taken.

Sandra's laugh tinkled across the counter and several loungers at the soda fountain turned to stare at her.

"Oh, my dear, you know how it is!" she said with an airy gesture. Sandra's assumption that every unmarried male in Belvedere paid court to her had irked many of her contemporaries. Monica had never felt a surge of irritation at this assumption before. Now she experienced it. Of course, Sandra was charming—but—

"What are you thinking of?" Sandra demanded.

"Nothing at all," Monica said hastily.

"Well, then, I'll be going," drawled Sandra over her shoulder. "See you soon."

She had not said a single word about Dan, had, in fact, deliberately left his name out of the conversation.

Monica burned to know what they had talked about the night before. Sandra was her good friend. But what had she said to Dan about her? It would be easy for Sandra to dismiss Monica with a phrase. She could say, "Of course, she's a nice little thing, Danny, but—"

and leave the implication that Monica was a nice little thing BUT her people lived on the wrong side of town, in the wrong sort of house. Would this matter to Dan? Perhaps not to him, but to his snobbish family—yes! Old Judge Cardigan looked 'way over Monica's head when he came in to buy shaving cream. Geraldine, Dan's sister, gave her the coolest meet. If Monica raged at this in her heart there was nothing she could do about it. Dan could change it all quickly enough, if he wished. No one in Belvedere would dare to snub Mrs. Daniel Cardigan.

Monica answered the telephone, took orders, all in a sick sort of daze. Things were not going at all as she had expected when Dan came home. What was she to do? She seemed to be losing him.

A man doesn't need to have a lot of money or a large residence in order to get a reputation for being a good host. With a bottle of Johnnie Walker in the house, a comfortable chair and a few yarns worth telling, he can make anyone feel "at home"—and that's the best entertainment.

SELFRIDGE'S

in 1909

started London by opening a huge Departmental Store right in the heart of London's shopping centre. Some people asserted that he was unduly optimistic.

SELFDRIDGE KNEW the value of newspaper advertising, and he built his business with justified optimism on the sure foundation of newspaper advertising and publicity.

People read about the venture in their daily newspapers—just as Selfridge intended they should do—and every day since the first announcement, the house of Selfridge has been advertised in the Press.

Gordon Selfridge has such faith in newspapers, so appreciates their appeal to the Public, that he opened a special department a few years ago wherein may be obtained the leading newspapers from every country in the world.

But Selfridge advertising is judicious advertising!

It appears in the leading newspapers where circulation is guaranteed just as the circulations of the South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph are guaranteed—certified by Chartered Accountants.

TINY GUNBOAT

H.M.S. SANDPIPER'S CHRISTENING

Shanghai, June 9. H.M.S. Sandpiper, which was built in England and shipped in packing cases to the Orient, and was reassembled at the Kiangnan Docks here, was launched yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mauchan, wife of the docks manager, performing the christening ceremony.

H.M.S. Sandpiper replaces H.M.S. Moorhen and is the sixth and smallest addition to the river gunboat fleet, attached to the China Flotilla, commissioned since the Great War. The little vessel draws only two feet of water, yet she is a fighting craft.

The dedication ceremony was performed by Dean Trivett and the Rev. Mr. Harthan. The ship was named by Mrs. Mauchan in the presence of the Acting-Consul General, Mr. Davidson. A number of Chinese and foreign naval officers and numerous civilian spectators, including hundreds of Chinese, gathered around the slipway to watch the launching.

Following the ceremonial prayers, a blessing and a verse of the National Anthem, Mrs. Mauchan broke a bottle of champagne over H.M.S. Sandpiper's bows. The little ship slipped into the Whangpoo to the strains of "A Life on the Ocean Wave."

Rear-Admiral Hill, senior naval officer on the Yangtze, sent a bouquet to Mrs. Mauchan, which was handed to her by Lieut.-Commander Ashe, commander of H.M.S. Sandpiper.

Appropriate speeches were delivered by Captain Chen vice-director of the Kiangnan Docks, Commander Flynn, and Mrs. Mauchan.—Reuter Special.

BELL INQUEST.

INQUIRY ADJOURNS IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, June 9. The inquest into the death of Leslie M. Bell, well-known British resident of Shanghai, whose death occurred as a result of a scuffle on the Bund on May 31, was adjourned to-day without evidence having been called.

Glen Hargrave, an American citizen, is charged with the murder of Bell.

The inquest had been anticipated with considerable excitement by that section of the Shanghai community in which the principals in the tragic drama of May 31 moved. But on the request of the Shanghai Municipal Police, whose investigation of the case is not yet complete, the hearing was adjourned until July 10.

Bell, it will be recalled, was found unconscious on the Bund. Subsequently it was discovered that he had received a blow on the jaw. The injuries sustained when he fell, it is alleged, caused his death.—Reuter.

RETURNING HOME.

WIFE OF MACAO GOVERNOR IN ILL HEALTH

Macao, June 9. Following instructions from her physicians, Madame Bernardes de Miranda, wife of H. E. the Governor, who is in Portugal for the Imperial Colonial Conference, will be sailing for Portugal at an early date. She will be accompanied by Mlle. and Master Miranda.

Mme. Miranda has not enjoyed good health since coming to Macao, but her condition improved not long ago and it was not thought necessary for her to accompany her husband when he sailed a few weeks ago. Subsequently, however, it has been found expedient that Mme. Miranda should return to her native country.—Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done: 5,810,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Stocks rallied swiftly due to a sensational rally in wheat which was caused by the blistering heat in the Midwest bringing fears that the crop would ripen prematurely. Also the continued weakness of the dollar gave the market further impetus. After the opening the market turned irregular due to declines in Postal Telegraph and Western Union due to the elimination by the House of a rider in the railroad bill which would have permitted both companies to merge. The Department of Agriculture estimated the Winter wheat crop at 341,000,000 bushels compared to 462,151,000 last year and 337,485,000 on May 1st.

Nationalist III, an outsider, with S. A. Judah up, scored a surprise victory by winning the Shanghai Challenge Cup and Champion Sweepstakes, outstanding classic event of the Shanghai Race Club's Spring Meeting. The winner beat Boot Black, H. Maitland up, by half a length, while Yecharoch, ridden by A. F. Clark, finished third, two lengths behind Boot Black. Welcome Morn, heavily backed favourite, and Smiling Morn, second favourite, failed to live up to predictions and Nationalist III, paid the excellent dividend of $122.40 for win. The winner's time was 2:34.45, 2 1/5 seconds over the record. Top photo shows some of the crowd who turned out for the races, while bottom photo shows the finish of the classic.

$100 MARRIAGES OF CONVENIENCE

SECRET ORGANISATION TO AID FOREIGN WOMEN

A secret organisation which, it was stated, arranges marriages between alien women and Englishmen in England for immoral purposes, was mentioned at London Sessions recently.

The purpose of these marriages is to make the women British subjects.

Detective Sergeant Mintir, of Scotland Yard, said that a man who used a West End estate agent's business to cloak his real activities had been the London agent of undesirable Frenchwomen and their associates for many years. He had been successful in arranging a number of marriages of convenience, for each of which he had received about $100.

"The Home Office views these marriages with grave apprehension," he said, "as we have been unable to obtain sufficient evidence on which to proceed against the organisers of this traffic. I am given to understand that he intends to make the Channel Islands the venue for these marriages."

Mr. J. E. Eastwood (prosecuting in the case before the Court) said that reciprocal arrangements had been made by the Home Office and the Irish Free State authorities to prevent these marriages taking place in Ireland.

Young Wife Leaps From A Liner

PASSENGERS SEE
SALOON DRAMA

Nice, May 15.
After a quarrel with her husband, a young wife threw herself overboard from the new Italian luxury liner, the Conte di Savoia, late last night.

A tensely-dramatic scene had taken place in the brilliantly-lit dining saloon. It was the last night of the voyage from New York, the passengers being due to disembark to-day at Villefranche, and later at Genoa.

Suddenly angry voices rang out, and a woman screamed. The actors in the drama were a young Italian woman and her husband, who had booked second class passages to Italy.

SUDDEN HUSH.

There was a sudden hush in the vast saloon. Then the woman, her eyes flashing, her cheeks blanched, rose swiftly to her feet and ran from the dining room, knocking over glasses and flower vases in her mad dash.

Passengers, led by the husband, ran after the young wife up the broad stairway. Then, with one despairing cry, she clambered on to the railings of the promenade deck and cast herself into the sea.

Her cries still rang out as the great liner, which had been travelling at full speed, came slowly to rest. Life-belts had been thrown overboard, while the turbines churned madly in reverse.

The lights of the liner were trained over the waste of water, but there was nothing to be seen. Boats were lowered, and for three hours they circled round in a vain search.

Long after midnight the liner slowly gathered speed on her journey to the French coast.

LABOUR PARTY TROUBLES

GROWING CLEAVAGE:
PLEA FOR UNITY

Trouble is brewing in the Labour movement between the Trade Union leaders and the theoretical Socialists.

The newly-formed Socialist League, of which Mr. E. F. Wiso is chairman, has been putting forward a programme which, in the opinion of most Trade Union leaders, is one of "political impossibility."

It may all be idealistic, it is said, but it is not practical, and it is calculated to drive away support from the real Labour movement, which in essence is far away from the Socialism advocated by the leaders of this new movement.

In one of the Labour organs, Mr. Ernest Bevin, the strong man of the T.U.C., has been writing a series of articles on unemployment.

These articles are advocating anything but the Socialism of the Wises and the Crippses and the Coles. They are not so much Socialism as social reform of the old Radical type. Mr. Bevin wants action.

"We want no more Royal Commissions or Committees," he states this week. "Action is needed, and needed speedily." His theory is to get something done that will benefit people.

THEORISTS' VISION.

The Socialist theorists, on the other hand, have issued a programme through a series of pamphlets, which mean at least seven major amendments to the Constitution.

It is not too much to say that this programme is alarming many of the Trade Union leaders. They do not propose to be dragged at the tail of middle-class theorists who are planning Utopia and ignoring the practical every-day problems.

For the moment, the menace of Hitlerism has prevented an open outbreak between these two sections, and Mr. Arthur Henderson seems to have been called on this week to raise another issue and plead for unity. He is calling on all the movement to defend democracy, which is in peril, according to him.

In spite of all efforts for unity, however, it is plain that the composite Labour Party of Socialists, trade unions, Fabians, and co-operators, as we know it before the last election, will never be the same again.

The trade unions, who find the bulk of the money, are not content for outside careerists to make their policy, and there are more unlikely things than that within the next few months the Socialist element will be told by the trade unions to mind its own business.

AMERICA'S LOAN TO CHINA

Criticism which has been levelled at the American loan to China, for the purchase of wheat and cotton, grows more emphatic as further details come to light. It is highly damaging to commercial interests, destructive as it is of normal channels of trade. Stripped of surface appearances, it represents a large monetary loan by the American Government to the Nanking Government and insofar as certain important internal taxes are hypothecated to meet principal and interest charges, it approaches dangerously near to an infringement of the Consortium Agreement of 1920. It will be recalled that in a public announcement, issued after the Paris meeting of the Consortium Council in May, 1923, the policy of the Consortium was stated to be the substitution of international cooperation for international competition in the economic and financial penetration arising from indiscriminate and unproductive foreign borrowings. The aim of the Consortium, as defined, was to assist China in the building up of her credit until she could borrow on the strength of her national credit without the necessity of recourse to specific security or supervision of expenditure. The Council held that the political difficulties precluded proposals for an administrative loan, it being the settled policy of the Consortium to refrain from interference in the internal political affairs of China. It would be futile, the Report added, to ask the foreign investor, to whom the Consortium stands in the relation of a quasi-trustee, to subscribe to a Chinese loan until he is satisfied that its proceeds will be properly expended. It may very well be that the $350,000,000 loan granted to China by the Finance Reconstruction Corporation is a matter outside the purview of the Consortium, for the reason that no public issue is contemplated. At the same time, there seems little doubt that the loan infringes the spirit of the agreement and threatens to undermine the valuable foundations built by the Consortium in pursuance of its declared policies. There is no guarantee, except in the first and unimportant instance, that the proceeds will be properly expended. Fundamentally, it is an administrative loan which may easily interfere with internal politics. The Nanking Government's position to-day is plainly precarious, skilful though it has been in steering clear of the many disasters predicted for it. And only the shallowest thinker could accept unquestioningly the suggestion that the Nanking Government is genuinely in the market for 900,000 bales of raw cotton and 12,000,000 bushels of wheat. The quantity of cotton is probably far greater than China would normally absorb in the three years during which the loan is to run, and the inspired report that the Chinese cotton mills in Shanghai are faced with bankruptcy and are appealing to the Government for assistance does not impress one iota, except as demonstrating, to some extent, the means by which Nanking proposes to turn the commodity loan into cash. One may assume that Nanking will also place the wheat upon the open market and possibly take steps, by means of tariffs or some other form of restriction, to ensure that the Government supplies are early taken up. The tax on rice, withdrawn last year upon the development of vigorous protests from Canton, suggests one means and also why the Wheat Loan planned at that time failed to go through. The conclusion inevitable is that whether it was so intended by the Finance Reconstruction Corporation or not, and Mr. Jesse Jones suggests that his prime concern was reducing America's surplus stocks, the arrangement is a camouflaged administrative loan to the Nanking Government.

"Seek Ye First—"

The motive of business—indeed, of all human activity—has to be service to mankind. It is inevitable. If "service" sounds old, so do the Ten Commandments. The word may have been debased; the idea has not. Like dutiful schoolboys, we have parroted many fine things ad nauseam. It is time we realized their meaning. Many of us ignore or scoff at things we have not taken the trouble to understand. We think of ideals as theoretical—something for other people, the visionaries, to follow. But our disregard is bound to bring affliction upon us, and often upon others also. And frequently we pay the cost of failure to know that life abundant which could be ours were we less "practical," less "smart." Immanuel Kant said one thing which even a layman can understand: that a human being should always be regarded as an end, not as a means. If employers and employees, "prospects" and salespersons, husbands and wives, parents and children, were always given the consideration implied in his words, how much better a world this would be! Plausible schemes to cure the world's ills seem to bring little more than confusion. Many are experimental. The Golden Rule is a gold standard from which nobody is compelled to depart, and it has survived some centuries.

THE COBBLER LEAVES HIS LAST

By E. L. ALLEN

One of the little-known romances of last century is the story of the shoemaker's son in Denmark who out of his savings built a school which should serve for the remaking of a nation.

Christen Kold was born in 1810 in a country town, and his parents, like so many others under similar circumstances, scraped and saved to give their boy advantages they themselves had never enjoyed. He went to be trained as a teacher and, his course completed, obtained a post in a country school. But his youthful energy fretted against the barriers set up around it by old-fashioned methods. When he came to the history lesson, for example, he closed the text-book and held the lads spell-bound while he told them graphic stories of the great men out of Denmark's past or led them in imagination over the battle-ground where gods had fought with giants and nation struggled with nation. His pupils were enthusiastic but the authorities wanted no innovations, and the young schoolmaster sent in his resignation, determined to set out for a land where he could teach as his heart moved him to do.

WANTED A NEW PATRIOTISM.

Somehow or other, however, he turned away from teaching for the time being, and we next hear of him in Smyrna, as servant to a Danish missionary. After a while, he set up in business as a book-binder. But when news reached him that war had broken out, he sold up his shop and came home as a volunteer. He marched in the ranks with the army that beat back the Prussian invasion in 1848. After a generation of impotence, Denmark was a great nation again! If only some way could be found to retain in time of peace the ardour and enthusiasm of the war-period! Not that he wished to perpetuate hostility against Prussia. But could not a new patriotism be taught, the love of one's own nation not as so much territory or a certain foreign policy but as a society of men and women with a common outlook on life?

What could he do? He would do what others before him had thought of doing, he would build a school. He had just £55 that he had saved from his own earnings, and well-wishers contributed another £70. But how could a school be built for £125? He did it.

BUILT OWN SCHOOL.

He found a spot on an island of the Danish coast where he resolved to begin work. There he bought a few acres of land, pulled down the weather-beaten buildings on them, and ran up instead a shed with a thatched roof, working on it with his own hands. This was divided into three rooms—kitchen, school-room, and dormitory. In the dormitory Kold himself, his assistant, and his twenty-five pupils all slept, and in the rooms below they lived like a family together. Beyond what little was left of his own capital and what came in through students' fees, money was desperately short, and only a Spartan simplicity of living made it possible to carry on. It is on record that one winter the whole household consumed only two pounds of sugar.

What sort of education was given in this strange kind of school? There were no text-books and scarcely any curriculum, while note-taking was strictly forbidden, and no one was examined to see how much he had learned. Lads of eighteen came in from the farms, to learn with the help of men older than themselves how they in turn could meet life—that was the only method there was. Community singing, the old Norse mythology, Danish history, Bible stories, and a simple Lutheran faith in God, these were the means he employed, not to teach anything in particular but to make free, open-minded men who could deal with anything from a hen-run to the policy of the State! His maxim was that a man can be nobleminded, even when he is milking the cow or clearing away the dung, and his ideal was the gentleman-farmer not in the English but in the Danish sense, the peasant working his farm with his own hands who is at the same time an educated man.

LIFE AGAINST DEATH.

He refused to give any "practical" training, but just because he did that, his school and others like it trained the men who made of Denmark the amazingly successful cooperative society that it became, at least in the country districts, towards the close of last century. As time went on, friends came to his help and the State gladly offered assistance, so that he moved to larger premises and again to larger still. Other schools sprang up, till to-day they are dotted all over Scandinavia. But he held that none of these could take the place of his own school. "Others," he said, "may work for the Danish national spirit or the rights of the peasants, and their very success will mean that they will be wanted no longer. But in my school we work for Life against Death, and that work must continue as long as the world lasts."

THE OTHER JANE

Just now, when the Brontes are in a flood of celebration, might not the real Jane Eyre be worth a moment's tribute? Who was she? Had she any connexion at all with the Jane of fiction? How comes it that she died in the very year in which her name was to be given immortality?

For a real Jane Eyre there was. On a grey stone beneath a weeping ash by the Chapel Royal, Savoy, is to be found all the world knows—or is likely to know—of that other Jane. Every day thousands pass by unheeding. There are wedding guests, too, who, while they are accepting Americans, and drift-folk from the Strand, tempted by the sight of an empty seat or two where they can park (Continued on Page 15.)

LANE CRAWFORD
TURNOVERSubstantial Decrease
Last YearBRIGHTER PROSPECT FOR FUTURE

"It is with regret that your directors find themselves unable to recommend payment of a dividend.

"After studying the results of the year, I think you will agree that the policy adopted by your Board of consolidation, the company's financial position and conserving its resources is more beneficial to shareholders than a small distribution of profits," said Mr. Michael H. Turner, who presided at the meeting of shareholders of Messrs. Lane, Crawford, Limited, held at Exchange Building this morning.

Mr. Turner said:—
Gentlemen, The Report and Accounts for the year ended 28th February, 1933, have been in your hands for the requisite number of days, and I will therefore, with your permission, take them as read.

In referring to the accounts before you, I will confine my remarks to the more important points, as where necessary, items have been set out in detail.

TURNOVER DECREASE.

Profit and Loss Account: In explanation of the reduction of working profit as compared with last year, I have to advise you that the Company suffered a substantial decrease in turnover. This regrettable falling off reflects the depressed trading conditions which existed throughout the year under review, as you are aware, the spending capacity of the public is naturally restricted until such time as the existing economic conditions are dispelled. I would also point out that the Company is meeting severe competition in practically every branch of its business.

The item—Profit and Loss—represents the adjustment of sterling accounts current between our office here and our London Agents.

The balance of $7,124.63 at credit of interest account arises through the employment during the year of the Company's general funds in financing the property side of our business. The bulk of interest received, therefore, is earned on what may be regarded as an internal loan and the corresponding charge, together with mortgage interest, is borne by property revenue account, which in turn is absorbed in general working.

REPAIRS EXPENDITURE.

Expenditure on repairs and renewals shows an increase this year of about $4,000, which is almost entirely accounted for by expenses incurred in redecorating the Exchange Restaurant and Lounge, and new private dining room.

Other items in the profit and loss account present no unusual feature, and do not call for any particular comment.

I propose to deal with depreciation when referring to items in the balance sheet.

Turning to the Balance Sheet: The fixed assets of the Company, after taking into account additions and sales during the year, and providing for depreciation, amount to $2,646,046.50.

COLD STORAGE PLANT.

The only addition calling for explanation is that appearing under the heading of bakery and cold storage plant. This increase of some $10,000 represents the cost of installing a new cold storage plant to meet the requirements of our provisions department, and to provide extra space for carrying stocks of butter. I will refer to this again when reporting on the activities of departments.

Sales during the year, you will note, include the amount received for the Company's Launch "Elsie," which was disposed of in the early part of 1932. With regard to depreciation, ample provision has been made.

The Company's properties—Exchange Building and 16 Burrows Street bakery and cold storage plant, fixtures and fittings, restaurant utensils, etc., have been depreciated in accordance with the usual practice. Motor Trucks have been written down by 25%.

Stocks have been valued at cost, and depreciated where necessary. The amount of stock this year is lower by $47,120.82.

Sundry debtors show a reduction of $70,790.06 as compared with the previous year.

On the other side of the balance sheet you will notice that a further payment of $160,000 has been made towards liquidation of the mortgage on the company's property, Exchange Building, reducing the liability to $2,100,000. The total of sundry creditors is less this year by $25,080.55.

NETT PROFIT $47,106.70.

As will be seen, the nett profit for the year, after making due allowance for depreciation, amounts to $47,106.70, which, added to the balance brought forward from last year, makes the amount $20,288.55 available for appropriation.

Your directors recommend that this amount be allocated as follows:—To place to general reserve $50,000, to place to reserve for bad and doubtful debts $5,000; to carry forward to next account $11,288.55. I would state that your directors consider the placing of $50,000 to reserve a sound policy in view of the present unsettled condition of trade. As a result of the transfer, our general reserve will stand at $250,000.

70 INDIAN SOLDIERS
LEAVE FOR HOMEColourful Farewell At Star Ferry Wharf

A colourful farewell ceremony was witnessed by a large crowd at the Star Ferry Wharf, Kowloon this morning, when a draft of 70 Indian soldiers were seen off to the B.I. steamer Tilawa by which they will return to Calcutta.

The draft which comprises men from the Jats, Mulo Corps, and H.K.S. Brigade, R.A. Includes four Indian officers one of whom is Subadar-Major Shah Zaman Khan, who holds a King's Commission as Honorary Lieutenant. The pipe and drum bands of the Jats and H.K.S. Brigade played appropriate music, and many British officers were present.

The departing soldiers, customary with an old Indian tradition, wore bright flowered laurels round their necks this adding a unique touch. Shortly before 9.15 they boarded the Army launch Omphale and a lighter.

Rousing cheers were given from the waterfront as the launch steamed towards the Tilawa.

The provision of a reserve for bad and doubtful debts is a necessary precaution in a business such as ours, and I feel sure you will agree with the policy of your directors in placing $5,000 to such reserve. Considering the extent of the Company's business, it is a matter for congratulation that the amount required is so small. By this transfer, the bad and doubtful debt reserve will amount to $5,314.04, which is considered adequate.

NO DIVIDEND.

It is with regret that your directors find themselves unable to recommend payment of a dividend. Having had opportunity yourselves of studying the results for the year, I think you will agree that the policy adopted by your Board of consolidation, the Company's financial position and conserving its resources is more beneficial to shareholders than a small distribution of profits. I accordingly trust you will approve the foregoing allocations. I think, Gentlemen, that satisfactorily explains the accounts before you.

REPUTATION MAINTAINED.

During the year your Company has maintained its reputation for supplying highest quality merchandise throughout all departments. This, however, does not mean that our prices are also the highest. We are only too conscious of the severe competition we have to contend with nowadays, and while we refuse to meet this competition by lowering our standard of quality, we do meet it by selling a good article at a really competitive price. I stress this point because there seems to be an impression that Lane Crawford's are a dear store, and because this meeting gives me an opportunity to ask all shareholders to tell their friends the truth about us.

Our buyers in London, Paris, and New York, continue to keep us well posted with the latest fashions and novelties, and in our Ladies' Salon especially, this up-to-dateness is greatly appreciated by our clientele. Our Furnishing Department continues to maintain its position, and is, we venture to state unequalled in the Colony. A considerable amount of "tender" work for ships, hotels, and offices was satisfactorily carried out during the past year.

We are strictly adhering to the principle of supplying only the best and freshest commodities in our grocery and provisions department, and the increased cold storage space erected during the year ensures the keeping of perishable goods in excellent condition in all seasons. In November last year we were appointed sole distributors for the world renowned "Anchor" Brand Butter, and this branch of our provisions department gives every indication of becoming a remunerative source of revenue.

INCREASED COMPETITION.

The Restaurant and bakery departments suffered greatly increased competition during the year, and in consequence of small returns from the King's Restaurant, your Board decided to discontinue acting as caterers there and concentrate on maintaining the popularity of Exchange Restaurant. The Company's interest in the King's Restaurant ceased on 31st March last, and it is satisfactory to note that Exchange Restaurant receipts are on the upward trend.

We have continued to improve our bakery department, and the bread and cakes, produced from Empire flour, are of the highest standard. Our branch depot in Nathan Road, Kowloon, where supplies of bread, cakes, groceries and provision, may be obtained, is now remaining open until 7 p.m. for the convenience of our customers on the Peninsula, and returns indicate that our efforts in this direction are appreciated.

Other departments are continuing to secure a good share of the Colony's business, and we are fortunate in holding several excellent agencies.

The Colony has not suffered so greatly as many places and countries, and I see no reason why, when the much discussed cycle of prosperity does overtake us, we in this Colony should not immediately participate. So far as our Company is concerned, it is the opinion of your Directors that every department of the business is in a position to take immediate advantage of any improvement in trading conditions.

Before proposing the adoption of the report and accounts, I would like to express the thanks of the directors and shareholders for the loyal co-operation of the staff during the year.

I now beg to formally propose that the Report and Accounts for the year ended 28th February 1933, as presented, be adopted, and shall be glad if some shareholder will second the proposal. "When this has been done, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability, any questions shareholders may wish to ask.

The proposition was seconded and carried unanimously.

ON SHOREMAN AND WOMAN DETAINED

The New Territories Police are endeavouring to solve a somewhat mysterious murder disclosed by the discovery of the mutilated remains of a Chinese in Kut O harbour, in the Shataukok district.

The dead man has been identified as Tsim Shul-lim, 27, employed as a fisherman on a boat owned by another man living at Chek Kok Tau Village.

When picked up on the foreshore in Kut O harbour at 11 a.m. yesterday, the corpse appears not to have been in the water long. Cut wounds were noticed in the mouth, ears, and legs, and numerous bruises were also evident.

Consequent on a statement by Tsim Sim, 25, brother of the murdered man, a Chinese man and woman living in the village have been detained by a Chinese detective for inquiries.

CONTINUES AFTER HIS MISHAP

Moscow, June 9.

Lieut. Matern, on his solo round-the-world flight attempt, has repaired the damage to his plane, "The Century of Progress," and has flown on to-day by arrived without incident at Krasnovarsk.

Yesterday Matern was working with his damaged machine, assisted by Russian experts who rushed to his assistance when he crashed in a forced landing. It was feared the delay might prevent his breaking the record for the round-the-world flight, which he seeks.—Reuter.

MEN WHO NEVER BOAST

LIMBLESS SOLDIERS AT ST. PAUL'S

DEAN INGE AND THE WAR-MAIMED

A remarkable utterance by Dean Inge was a feature of the annual Service for Limbless ex-Servicemen in St. Paul's Cathedral.

It was the first time they had gathered there, the Service having hitherto been held at St. Martin-in-the-Fields. The men, who number some hundreds, belong to the St. Martin Association for Limbless Ex-Servicemen, and are from all parts of London.

Some incapacitated from walking or resident in outlying county areas were brought in motor-ambulances. A few had to be carried into and from the Cathedral, and some were in self-propelled bath chairs. The majority, on crutches and with sticks, came individually, often accompanied by friends.

Dean Inge, who preached, said the Great War, unlike all previous wars, kept men in the trenches constantly exposed to terrible engines of destruction. The only set-off to that was the very small percentage of deaths from sickness, which, in earlier wars carried off far more men than the bullets of the enemy.

In the Great War against Napoleon, between 1793 and 1815, the almost incredibly small number of 25,000 were killed in action, whereas 194,000 died of sickness.

"Have we half-forgotten those terrible four years?" he said. Thinking of the crowds that yearly gathered on Armistice Day, one was inclined to say "Most certainly not." Yet, on the other days of the year did we think enough about it? Did we think that most of the middle-aged men we met had been through the terrible experiences they hardly ever talked about?

NO BOASTING NOW.

"Where is the once familiar figure of the boastful old soldier who loved to fight his battles over again?" asked the Dean. "We never meet him now. I suppose the realities of those terrible years were really too bad to talk about. One wonders what they are thinking about it all. Many of them, no doubt, feel that the older generation blundered badly to make such a disaster possible."

They saw around them just the things which it was hoped would not be seen after the War—luxury, waste, idleness, frivolity, and class conflicts. Was this the England which many of their comrades died to preserve?

And then the young people, who did not remember the War, did they realise that it was for them to see to it that nothing of the kind happened again? He feared that the silence of the old soldiers of the Great War had been carried a little too far, and that a generation had grown up who were not warned of the awful possibilities of another war, which would probably wreck civilisation altogether.

BATSMEN REAP A RICH HARVEST

THREE DOUBLE CENTURIES

ONLY ESSEX WIN OUTRIGHT

Thirteen Three Figure Innings

YORKSHIRE LOSE 100 PER CENT. RECORD

HERBERT SUTCLIFFE, the Yorkshire batsman, who scored his highest innings of the season to date against Warwickshire. Sutcliffe reached 205 before dismissal.

London, June 9.

Batsmen reaped a rich harvest of runs in first class cricket during the last three days and so heavy, was scoring on the hard wickets, that in only one county match was a definite result reached, the remainder being decided on first innings.

Three double centuries were recorded, the feat being performed by Bakewell of Northants, Headley of the West Indies and Herbert Sutcliffe of Yorkshire.

There were ten additional individual three-figure scores as well as John Langridge's 99 against Lancashire.

Bowlers had a heart-breaking task and in only five instances were any sort of successes enjoyed, Bowes, Brown, Boyes, Perks and Griffith returning extraordinarily good analysis under the conditions.

As a result of the prolific scoring, Yorkshire, although winning on first innings, lost their 100 per cent. record, whilst Essex improved their position in the county championship by beating Hampshire. Sussex (against Lancashire), Northants (against Notts), Worcester (against Derbyshire) and Surrey (against Leicester) were other teams to capture first innings points.

HARD LUCK HANTS!

Hampshire had a heart-breaking experience against Essex. Enjoying a lead on the first innings of 63, they found themselves fighting for runs in their return to the wicket.

Even so they set Essex with 277 to win on a crumbling wicket, but so wholeheartedly did the batsmen go for the runs that they were obtained amid tremendous excitement for the loss of six wickets.

O'Conner played a magnificent part in this victory, scoring a fine century.

NOTTS MORTIFIED.

Notts, after rattling up 429 had the mortification of seeing Northants surpass it with 521 and although there was never any chance of a definite result, Notts were definitely in the doldrums, their second innings yielding but 196 for 6 wickets and further time would have made an outright win almost a certainty for Northants.

Herbert Sutcliffe, in recording his biggest score of the season since returning from Australia, made the Warwick attack look very thin.

Warwick replied gamely at the wicket, scoring 310 in their first venture, but they were still 145 runs in arrears after losing four wickets for 127 in the return visit.

Surrey, after establishing a very big advantage against Leicester could not drive it home to the full and their opponents saved the game. Leicester were 188 runs to the bad on the first innings, but batted so skilfully in the second that they easily averted defeat.

PROLIFIC W. INDIES.

Kent batsmen are still falling. Twice dismissed for just over 250 runs against the M.C.C., they lost by 86 runs. Bowes did some useful bowling in this game taking 6 for 60.

In direct contrast the West Indies are increasing their scores every match. A glorious double century by W. Headley allowed them to declare with the mammoth total of 428 for 6 wickets.

Somerset were well behind on the first innings, but recovered in the second and played out time fairly easily, aggregating 323 for 9, being then over 100 runs in advance.

CORINTHIANS DEPOSED

NO EXEMPTION IN F.A. CUP

PARTICIPATION IN EARLY ROUNDS

London, May 30.

The Corinthians, the famous amateur Association football club, have failed to secure exemption from the early rounds of next season's F.A. Cup competition. Thus, their entry will be two earlier than in previous seasons and from now on they will come into the competition with the majority of the Third Division sides.

Last season, the famous amateurs played their first match in January, when they were defeated by West Ham United at the Crystal Palace. At that time there was something of an outcry against what some of the smaller clubs against what some of the smaller clubs termed the "preferential treatment" meted out to the Corinthians, and it was argued that their record in previous years did not merit their exemption until such a late stage of the competition.

FAIL IN A TEST.

For this reason, the West Ham match was looked upon as a test. If the Corinthians could prove their ability to hold their own against the Second Division side there could be little argument against their exemption from the earlier rounds. After a poor game, the amateurs were defeated by 2-0, but the score flattered them. The Corinthians were inferior in every department of the game and it was quite obvious they could have little hope of beating even the weakest members of the various leagues. Immediately, a more persistent attack against the Corinthians was launched and this has resulted in the action to-day of the committee who deal with exemptions.

The Corinthians first took part in the tournament in the season 1922-23, and their best performance since was the defeat of Blackburn Rovers, in 1923-24. In 1925-26, they drew with Manchester City at the Crystal Palace and lost the replay.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Sussex (397-8 dec) beat Lancashire (311 and 69-2) on first innings
Northants (521) beat Notts (429 and 196-6) on first innings
Worcester (390 and 55-3) beat Derbyshire (303) on first innings
Essex (274 and 277-6) beat Hampshire (337 and 211) by four wickets
Yorkshire (591-6 dec) beat Warwick (319 and 127-4) on first innings
Surrey (464-7 dec) beat Leicester (276 and 311-6) on first innings
OTHER MATCHES.
M.C.C. (406 and 187-8 dec) beat Kent (253 and 254) by 86 runs
West Indies (482-6 dec) drew with Somerset (272 and 323-9).

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS BY U.S.R.C.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING TO MIXED DOUBLES LEAGUE

C.R.C.—CHIEF RIVALS WIN COMFORTABLY

(By "Veritas").

Overcoming one of their biggest obstacles in the first match of the season the United Services Recreation Club have established a moral, as well as an actual advantage, and retention of the Dunlop Shield for the Mixed Doubles tennis league championship would appear well within their grasp.

The U.S.R.C. have only to fear the Chinese Recreation Club, and as the teams meet next Friday, the championship will, I think, be decided on that day.

To defeat an I.R.C. combination boasting the Rumjahn cousins and Cassumbhoy by seven sets to two is an achievement worthy of serious consideration. As last year, the great strength of the winners lay in their balance, the ladies pulling their weight and more than holding their own in the rallies. "H.D." and Miss Rose Rumjahn had a very unsuccessful afternoon losing all three sets whilst S. A. Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew, and Cassumbhoy and Miss Gecks managed to snatch a set each, M.F.H. Waring and Miss Hancock conceding both.

UPSETS AT K.C.C.

There were quite a few upsets at the K.C.C., where the Chinese romped home with a 72 victory, history repeating itself.

Among the unexpected individual results were the loss of two sets by M. K. Lo and Mrs. Enid Litton, local singles champion, and the concession of a set by Teddy Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel to Ho Ka-lau and Miss Perry at six-love.

The K.C.C. should have won at least two additional sets. Ernest Fincher and Mrs. Hamby led 6-2 against Tsui Wai-pui and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu and lost 7-5, and they were in a position to beat Ho Ka-lau and Miss Perry, but threw it away through blunders at the critical stage and again lost at the twelfth game.

HO AT THE NET.

In winning three sets, Ho Ka-lau operated with great success from the net. He refused to budge and covered everything within range. No sort of tactics could budge him, his volleying and overhead working smoothly and with the minimum of errors.

Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu gave Tsui Wai-pui splendid support enabling the young interporter to secure the maximum number of wins. M. K. Lo and his sister, Mrs. Litton took some time to settle down and were decidedly off colour until the last set, when both found their length and M. K. Lo sought the net with success. Mrs. Hamby was the outstanding K.C.C. lady player and if her partner could have revealed a little more steadiness in crucial phases of the sets, would certainly have recorded a couple of wins.

AFTER A GOOD START.

Miss Olive Dalziel, after a strong opening, lost her length and Teddy Fincher seemed unable to make good the deficiency.

Miss Griffiths was consistent and when she has enjoyed a little more match experience will easily hold her own.

Guest, her partner, was the steadiest player on the courts, and exhibited some delightful touches, but did not enjoy the best of luck. Although the Ladies Recreation Club comfortably beat the Recreation Club, the inclusion of R. Trull was not the success anticipated, and in company with Miss Thomas, former finalist in the ladies singles championship of the Colony, and an Interport nominee, lost all three sets.

HO KA-LAU, who played a leading part in the defeat of the K.C.C. by the Chinese Recreation Club yesterday.

H. J. Armstrong and Mrs. Stafford Smith and R. H. Mould and Mrs. Wadding, however, pulled the game out of the fire for the visitors.

Details of the matches follow:

U.S.R.C. v. Indians.

Playing on their own courts the U.S.R.C. won from the Indian R.C. by seven sets to two. Scores: L. Goldman and Mrs. Lochner (U.S.R.C.) beat S. A. Rumjahn and Mrs. A. J. Kew, 6-3; beat H. D. Rumjahn and Miss R. Rumjahn, 6-3; beat J. A. E. Cassumbhoy and Miss Gecks, 6-0.

R. E. Tottenham and Mrs. Lewis Bryan (U.S.R.C.) beat Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew, 6-2; beat Rumjahn and Miss Rumjahn, 6-2; beat Cassumbhoy and Miss Gecks, 6-2.

M. H. F. Waring and Miss R. Hancock (U.S.R.C.) lost to Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew, 4-6; beat Rumjahn and Miss Rumjahn, 6-2; lost to Cassumbhoy and Miss Gecks, 4-6.

Kowloon C.C. v. Chinese R.C.

Mrs. Enid Litton, the ladies champion of the Colony, and her brother M. K. Lo, lost the only two sets won by the Kowloon C.C. at King's Park against the Chinese R.C. Scores:

E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel (Kowloon C.C.) beat M. K. Lo and Mrs. E. Litton, 6-4; lost to Tsui Wai-pui and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu, 8-9; lost to Ho Ka-lau and Miss R. Perry, 0-6.

E. F. Fincher and Mrs. Hamby (Kowloon C.C.) lost to Lo and Mrs. Litton, 8-6; lost to Tsui and Mrs. Chiu, 6-7; lost to Ho and Miss Perry, 6-7.

A. E. P. Guest and Miss Griffiths (Kowloon C.C.) beat Lo and Mrs. Litton, 6-3; lost to Tsui and Mrs. Chiu, 4-6; lost to Ho and Miss Perry, 4-6.

The Club de Recreation, playing against the Ladies' R.C. at King's Park were beaten by six sets to three. Scores:

F. J. Remedios and Miss C. M. Botelho (Club de Recreation) lost to R. J. Armstrong and Mrs. Stafford Smith, 2-6; beat R. Trull and Miss Thomas, 6-3; lost to R. H. Mould and Mrs. Wadding, 2-6.

C. A. Barretto and Miss O. M. Ribeiro (Club de Recreation) lost to Armstrong and Mrs. Stafford Smith, 1-6; beat Trull and Mrs. Wadding, 6-4; lost to Mould and Mrs. Wadding, 4-6.

A. V. Remedios and Miss O. M. Botelho (Club de Recreation) lost to Armstrong and Mrs. Stafford Smith, 2-6; beat Trull and Miss Thomas, 6-3; lost to Mould and Mrs. Wadding, 2-6.

THE OTHER JANE

themselves for nothing. But how many ever take the trouble to notice a legend which tells us that here, in the year 1847, were laid to rest the remains of "Jane Eyre," wife of William Eyre, of the parish of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, aged 51?"

So far as research has availed up to the present nothing whatever is known of the Jane of real life—save that she appears to have been a person of some substance and that she just missed seeing Euston Station and New Oxford-street. To this extent she may be accounted happy. Dr. Derry, the Master of Music of the Savoy Chapel, who is writing a book about the place, can find nothing in regard to her, save that she lived at John-street, Adelphi.

It does not seem as if anyone in that far-off Hawthorn village can possibly have heard of her. The name Eyre had, of course, been considerably before the public in the "Forties, through the adventures in Kabul of Sir Vincent Eyre, who was afterwards to distinguish himself further in the Indian Mutiny. With him the Savoyard Jane seems to have had nothing to do.

One thing about her is at least certain. If she had lived a year longer she would have found life in some ways more exciting. Wherever she went people would have looked up at the very mention of her with the bright eye of recognition. There would have been much speculation as to what was her true attitude towards Mr. Rochester. Possibly she might have found cause to lodge an injunction against the mysterious Currer Bell, as having herself also suffered.

As it is, she rests but a few feet from the labouring highway, happily unconscious of the irony of being known only by the posthumous likeness of her name—that of a non-existent character of whom she had never heard.

CAPTIVES' PERIL

BRITISH OFFICERS IN DANGER OF DEATH

Dairen, June 9. Councillor Wang of the Fengtien Government, disgusted with the slow proceedings with respect to the release of the officers on the Nanchang, went on horseback and accompanied to the West bank of the Si River, West of Yinkow, today and offered the bandits $30,000 on behalf of Manchukuo for the men's release.

The bandits, however, demanded $100,000. Wang then threatened that Manchukuo and Japanese troops would annihilate the gang if the release were delayed longer.

Messrs. Clifford Johnson, Hargrave and Blue are the captives, and they have been in the hands of the bandits for more than 10 weeks. Fears are felt for their health.

Later. Mukden, June 9. A punitive expedition against the bandits holding the three officers of the Nanchang has been decided upon.

The British Consul-General is willing for the operation to commence, although it means a certain risk for the three captives. —Reuter.

London, June 9. In the Hitchin by-election, caused by the death of Viscount Knebworth Sir Arnold Wilson, Conservative, 14,569, defeated William Bennett, Labour, 10,362. —Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The real Hollywood, its heart-breaks, its glamour, its wild striving for story-book success, its tinsel and fanfare, its comedy—as seen through the eyes of hundreds of our young men and women who have been there to try for fame and who have failed—or won.

That's the picture which Paramount brings to screen audiences at the Queen's Theatre with the opening of "Make Me a Star."

Based on the internationally famous real-life novel by Harry Leon Wilson, "Make Me a Star," goes to the humankind of America's film capital in a way that no story has ever done before.

Joan Blondell and Stuart Erwin head the feature cast with ZaSu Pitts and Ben Turpin.

As the clerk in the country store who is reviled for his highfalutin ideas about acting, Erwin is seen in a characterization that lifts him to the great heights.

Joan Blondell is the hard-boiled "double" for a famous star who sympathizes with Erwin and gets him his first chance to act before the Hollywood cameras. Helen Jerome Eddy is his small-town girl friend whose general faith in his abilities spurs him on to make sacrifices that would otherwise have died a-borning.

Ben Turpin furnishes gales of laughter as the successful comedian who looks very suspiciously like Ben Turpin himself. This is the first time he has played the role of Ben Turpin imitating Ben Turpin. And he outdoes himself!

"Scarface"

When Howard Hughes' great melodrama "Scarface," comes to the King's Theatre to-morrow, local movie patrons will have an opportunity to see a boy from the New York night clubs who is making good in Hollywood and they will also see a young screen actor who resembles the late Rudolph Valentino, whom he knew intimately for years.

The boy is George Raft. Raft comes by his movie heritage honestly. A quiet lad, he gives one the impression of authority even in such an inoffensive chore as eating pork chops in the Brown Derby restaurant.

He graduated from newspaper corner into the night club, and for years he danced for Texas Guinan. And between times he was a professional baseball player.

His first intimation that he might get to Hollywood was an offer from Valentino to act as his double. In silent pictures. Nothing ever came of that, and it wasn't until years later that he arrived in California. For months and months he got a job here and a job there, none of them very important, and it looked for a long time as if he would be just another hanger-on in Hollywood.

But somebody found George for Howard Hughes when "Scarface" was being cast, and it certainly was a find. For George is a member of one of the greatest casts ever seen upon the screen.

Raft's resemblance to Valentino is amazing, although he portrays a different type of role. In Hollywood he pals around with what is known as "the New York crowd," a group including Jimmie Durante, Lew Clayton, Louis Cohen, Jack Harvey and others. "Scarface" is the greatest underworld picture ever screened.

"Symphony of Six Million"

There is an actor in Hollywood who knows a good role when he strikes one; and when he does he fights for it, tooth and nail. Ricardo

MINISTER'S VISIT.

SIR MILES LAMPSON
ON YANGTZE

Peking, June 9. Sir Miles Lampson, British Minister to China, is leaving this afternoon for Pukow on a short visit to the Upper Yangtze ports. He intends to go as far as Chungking and to be absent from Peking for about a fortnight. —Reuter.

Cortez is that actor. Erst-while screen villain, he casually read a script called "Symphony of Six Million," written by Fannie Hurst. The chief role was a sympathetic one—that of a self-sacrificing doctor who toiled endlessly for the relief of the sick poor. Cortez saw himself as that doctor. He imagined himself playing that role—shading it with delicate nuances of action and striking out into the fortissimo passages of the dramatic sequences. He tried by ordinary means to get that role, but the RKO-Radio Pictures withheld their decision. He had played villain so long. Could he deviate into sentiment and romance?

It was then that Cortez began to fight with the result that "Symphony of Six Million" now showing at the Central Theatre finds him in the leading male role, co-featured with Irene Dunne. Cortez, deliberately plotted his campaign to win the role. Unknown to the studio executives or to Gregory La Cava, the director, he hired cameramen, electricians and rented all the various paraphernalia needed to make a screen test.

One afternoon he sneaked to an unused corner of a sound stage, set the camera up, adjusted his impromptu set, made himself up and test himself for the role he was determined to get.

Cortez chances seemed slim since some twenty odd men had been considered for the role. However, he persisted and made several more tests in which he pictured the graduated stages of a man's life from youth to middle age.

He didn't end there. He made an alliance with a doctor and through this friendship was permitted to view an actual operation. He knew he would need this knowledge and experience when he achieved the part.

When he thought he was ready Cortez gathered his armful of screen tests and quietly laid them before the studio executives.

"That is what I can do with that role," he said. "If you still think I can't play it after you see this film, then I'll quit worrying about it."

They saw the film. Cortez got the role.

Real Competition

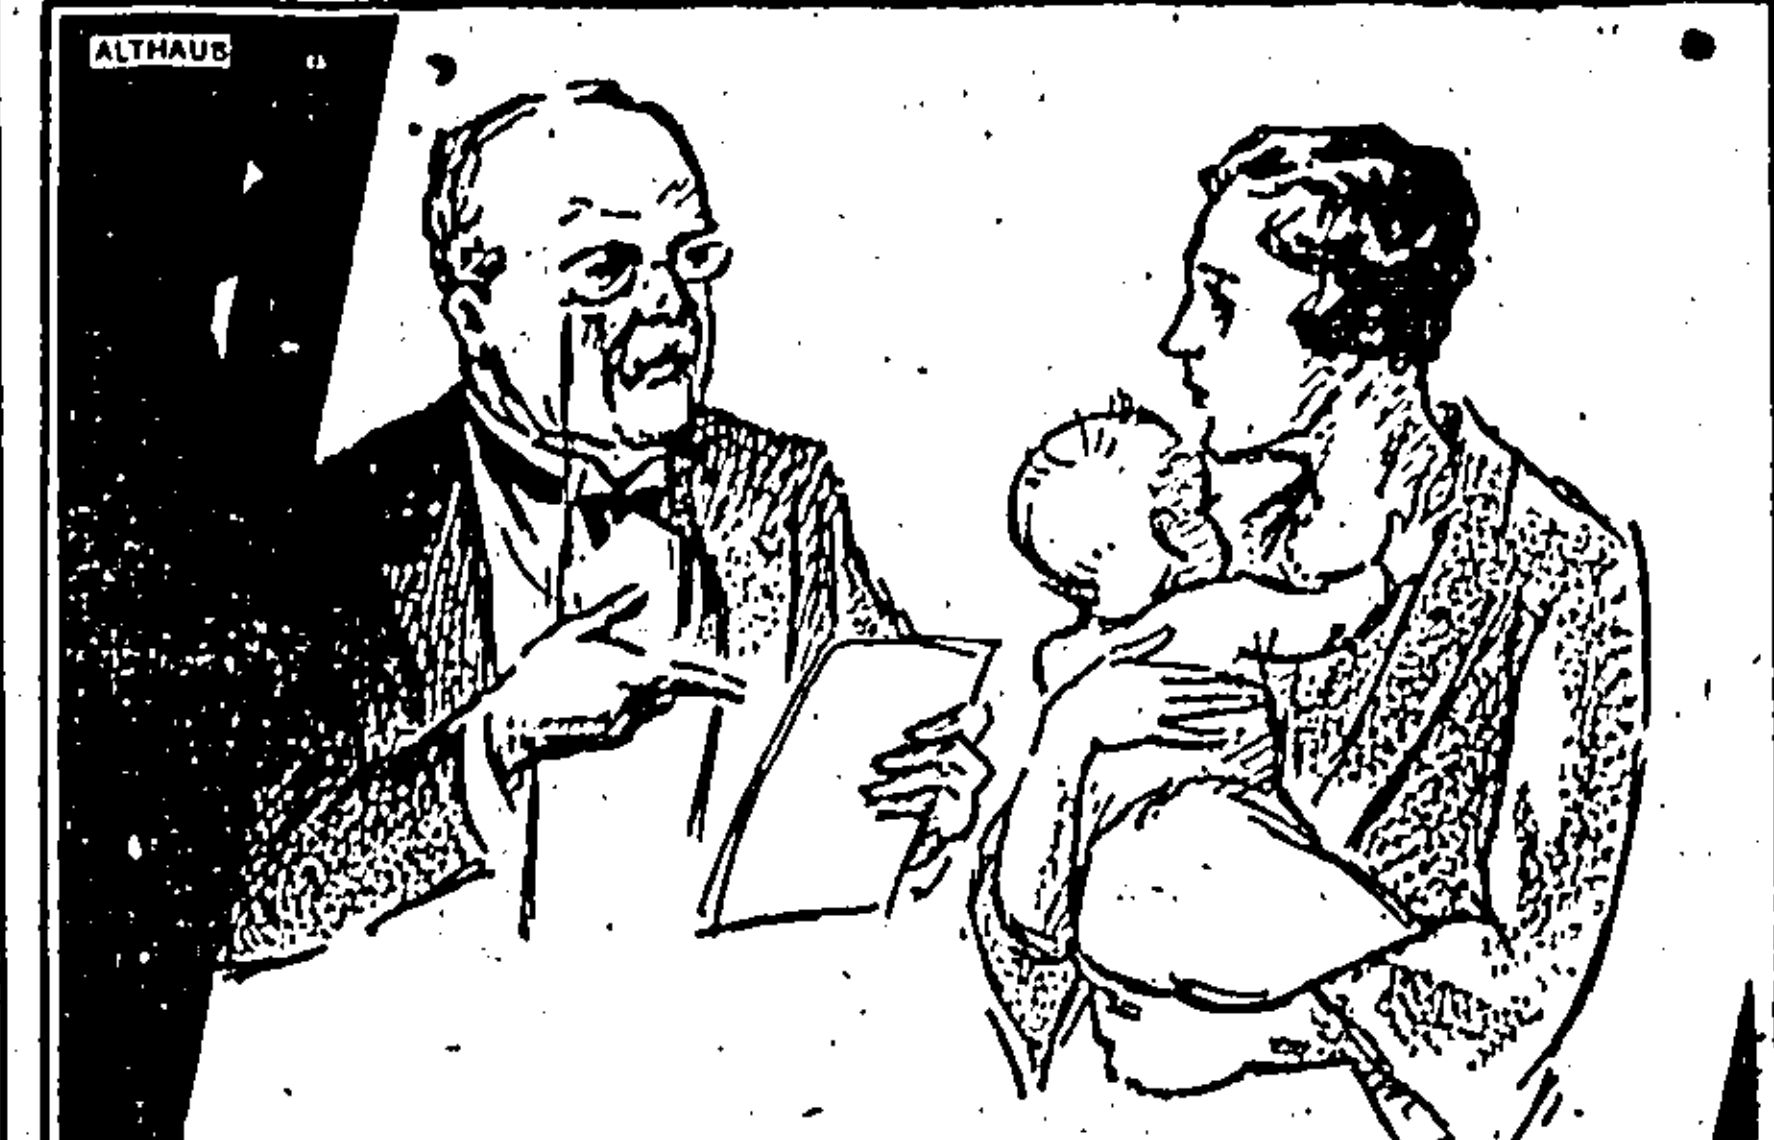

Not until the picture was practically completed did the producers and players in "Hot Saturday," know how it would end.

The picture, with Cary Grant, Nancy Carroll and Randolph Scott in leading roles, is at the Queen's Theatre.

The reason for the enigma lay in the fact that both Grant and Scott, sensational young Hollywood finds, both performed so well in trying to win Miss Carroll that the producers weren't sure which one had greater audience sympathy. The one who did have, they agreed, should certainly win the girl.

The producers were stumped. Would the audiences be sympathetic with Grant's suave love-making, or with Scott's awkward advances and his momentary rage?

Ultimately they settled the problem with a climax that is said to be startling in its boldness.

If you listen to my advice as an experienced doctor, then . . .

exercise the greatest care in the choice of baby's food. So much in later years depends on the foundation laid in infancy. With the mother lies a big responsibility, the welfare of the coming generation. The tropics especially call for a healthy constitution. For baby, therefore, the best only is good enough. This is the reason why you should give baby plenty of "BEAR BRAND" Milk. It does more than merely nourish, it builds up the whole system. It paves the way to perfect health and success in life. BEAR BRAND comes from the great Swiss Milk centre, the Emmenthal, it is very rich in nutritive elements, absolutely pure and an infant food par excellence. BEAR BRAND Milk goes to make healthy babies, happy children, successful men and women.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

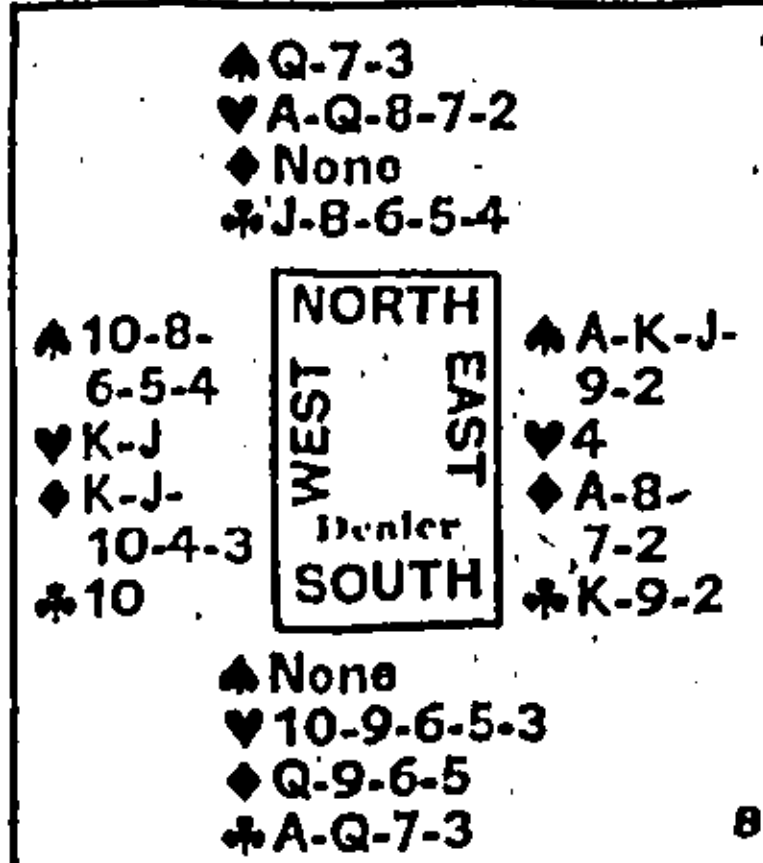

Sacrifice bidding often brings about an interesting angle in tournament play. Take for example the following hand—while the bidding is not unusual, the results were rather spectacular. I want especially to call your attention to the play of the club suit.

The Bidding

South was the dealer and passed, as did West, but North opened with one heart. North had only one and one-half high card tricks but he had a two-suit hand and a void. It is a hand which we feel justifies a third hand opening bid. East has an ideal negative double—that is, he has a good spade suit. Generally it is not advisable to double one major unless you can support the other.

South, being void of spades and having five hearts, can make constructive re-double. West should respond with one spade. North passed. East bid two spades and South three hearts.

West now showed his second suit by bidding four diamonds.

North felt that it would be necessary for his side to take a sacrifice, as they were not vulnerable, and showed his second suit by bidding five clubs. East bid five spades and South bid six hearts, fully prepared to go down.

West and North passed and East doubled. West passed, as he felt that he had a possible heart trick.

The Play

East opened a spade which was ruffed in dummy. A diamond was ruffed in the declarer's hand, and he had to elect how to play the club suit.

If the clubs split 2-2 there was nothing to worry about, but if they split 3-1 and the three were in the East hand, the declarer had a chance to make all of the club tricks, but only by one play. He must lead the jack of clubs, depending upon the nine or ten being a singleton in the West hand. Therefore the proper play was not a small club, but the jack of clubs. Now when East covered with the king, declarer played the ace from dummy and West's ten dropped. A heart was led and the finesse taken.

The ace of hearts picked up West's king and now all the declarer had to do was to cross-ruff the hand out, finessing East out of his nine of clubs. Not only was the contract of six odd made, but the declarer had made a grand slam.

HAYSTACK BLAZE

SPECTACULAR AFFAIR

KENNEDY TOWN BONFIRE

Much alarm was occasioned last night at Kennedy Town by a fire which broke out in a large haystack near the abattoir.

For two hours the stack burnt merrily as a spectacular bonfire until control was secured by a flood of water from a host of jets brought up by firemen.

With the record of disastrous fires in this district, firemen were fully alive to the danger of several tons of burning hay going up to spread disaster in a crowded area.

Fortunately there was an almost total absence of wind, although there was an anxious period while waiting for water to come through the mains.

After 15 minutes' delay, the jets got to work as sufficient pressure was secured. The fire itself was also brought round and salt water led through several hundred feet of canvas piping contributed to a veritable flood being concentrated on the burning mass.

In a near-by shed, a herd of bullocks awaiting slaughter showed distinct signs of uneasiness as they sensed the danger, but it was not found necessary to move them out.

By one o'clock this morning, the fire was put out and all danger passed.

GT. BRITAIN IN SEMI-FINAL

early lead and captured the first set at 6-3.

The German came back strongly in the second and Satoh could only win two games; but the Japanese assumed a very definite superiority after this and sustaining a powerful attack ran away with the succeeding sets at 6-3, 6-4.

Nunzi accomplished a like performance against Jaenike, losing the second set, but winning three others at 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

At Prague, Czechoslovakia finally defeated Greece by five matches to love, Siba and Menzel winning the remaining singles.

Both went to four sets, but the winners had things pretty well their own way, conceding the third sets in the orthodox manner.

DETAILS.

Scores as wired by Reuter were: Britain beat Italy at Eastbourne by three matches to love.

F. Perry and G. P. Hughes (Britain) beat Rado and Carroli 6-1, 6-4, 9-7.

Japan leads Germany at Berlin by two matches to love.

J. Satoh (Japan) beat Von Cramm 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4; Nuno (Japan) beat Jaenike 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Czechoslovakia beat Italy at Prague by five matches to love.

Siba (Czechoslovakia) beat Stalios 6-3, 6-1, 3-6, 8-6; Menzel (Czechoslovakia) beat Nicolaidis 6-1, 6-2, 4-6, 6-0.

34 Wounds From A Cane

ILL TREATMENT OF MUI TSAI

"Under the circumstances I don't think $100 is quite adequate, and it will be $200 or two months' remuneration," remarked Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, in finding a woman, Kwan Sze To-shi for having ill-treated a registered mui tsai on June 9 and previous dates.

The defendant said that the girl went out to buy vegetables at 10 a.m. and did not return until 12 noon. She gave her a few strokes with the cane.

Sub-Inspector Fraser, of the S.C.A., said that information was received regarding the girl being ill-treated. The girl was seen by a lady inspector, who found her washing a huge pile of clothes in the presence of the defendant and 34 cane marks and several bruises were found on her body. The defendant's bail was $100.

Mr. Schofield remarked that he noticed that in the doctor's opinion it amounted to cruelty, but he did not know whether it was gross cruelty.

His Excellency the Governor has accepted the resignations by Major H. E. Standage, O.B.E., and Lieutenant H. Forster of their Commission in the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps.
